Rooted in its Montessori beginnings, Odyssey's system wide wellness initiative is grounded in the belief that children learn best in environments that nurture the Whole Child. This holistic health model integrates organic, scratch made nutrition in the schools' federally funded Healthy Cafés; hands on nutrition and wellness education in school gardens and on the school's organic, soil based farm; healthy school building design that incorporates natural light, clean air, and green spaces; positive discipline practices inspired by Jane Nelsen; exciting enrichment and acceleration opportunities in the classroom and beyond the school day; and a dynamic physical fitness program (Fitness 4 Life) that includes extended opportunities such as a before school walking club and the Science in the Gym curriculum. Together, these elements reflect Odyssey's Montessori influenced commitment to educating the whole learner and position the school as a national leader in cultivating healthy, high achieving learning environments. In this interactive session, we will showcase how Odyssey strategically utilizes Title I Schoolwide, Title II, Title IV, and other federal and state funding flexibilities—including competitive opportunities such as the Stronger Connections Grant—to enhance and expand its wellness driven mission while ensuring full compliance with federal regulations. Participants will actively engage in: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Guided discussions on aligning federal funding with whole child priorities • Practical activities exploring braided funding strategies • Collaborative problem solving focused on designing wellness centered school improvement systems 	Alice Blanco, Director of Federal Programs, Odyssey Charter School, Inc Dr. Monica Knight, Executive Director of Quality Schools & Special Projects, Green Apple School Management Ms. Constance Ortiz, CEO, Green Apple School Management	St. Augustine ABCD
